AT A GLANCE

Who We Are Southeast Alaska Independent Living (SAIL) is a consumer-run, consumer-controlled agency in the truest sense of the meaning: our philosophy is that people with disabilities are their own best advocates and serve as the best example to their peers as models of success. To that end, 51% of all staff, decision-makers and board of directors are individuals with disabilities. Our mission at SAIL is to inspire independence for everyone. We not only advocate for and encourage independence for people with disabilities we also do so for our senior citizens. We are fortunate to have a fantastic support network as we strive to reach our goal of independence for all!

What We Do: SAIL's core services are Advocacy, Information and Referral, Independent Living Skills Training, Peer Support and De-Institutionalization. In addition to these services, SAIL offers programs that support independent living including benefits counseling, home modifications, assistive devices, emergency financial assistance, a loan library, peer support groups, recreation and community inclusion activities, and Deaf services including the sign language interpreter referral program.

“Independent Living is giving people the tools they need to help themselves”

WHAT IS PERSONAL INDEPENDENCE?

Meet Bill - an active member of the Haines community; he lives independently and has had long time employment as a DJ at the local radio station, KHNS. Until a bike accident in 2011, Bill relied solely his bike for transportation. After a hip replacement and a lot of therapy, Bill realized that his bike would no longer be an option during the winter months. His independence was in jeopardy without transportation to work, the grocery store and the Post Office. He came to SAIL requesting assistance. This GEM

Electric Cart (pictured above) just happen to be for sale locally and would be perfect for Bill except for two obstacles.. 1)The price tag was more than he could afford on a small fixed income and 2) Bill did not have a drivers license. SAIL staff approached additional organizations that might have a vested interest in Bill's success to see who might be interested in partnering with SAIL to help Bill purchase the cart . In the end, Bill himself, SAIL, Alaska Vocational Rehabilitation and the Alaska Mental Health Trust all pitched in and purchased the cart. While the funds were being acquired, Bill went to work on life long goal and received his first ever Drivers License! Bill is ecstatic about his new transportation and his renewed sense of Personal Independence!.

A quote from Bill here

Four times as many people with disabilities as nondisabled people lack suitable transportation options to meet their daily mobility needs. -National Organization on Disability

Meet David -a 12-year-old boy, who liked say, "No. I can't." Sometimes he would mumble it, sometimes he would yell it, and most others he would just crumble to the ground in exhaustion and defeat. It was a good day if he was convinced to even step outside in his ski boots, and even better day if a pair of skis was lying somewhere in the vicinity. Bystanders surely wondered the purpose, as day after day they passed him as he sat with his ORCA (Outdoor Recreation and Community Access) instructor in the snow. For hours, he watched and waited.

A year went by, and no one expected to see David back at the ORCA ski program. But the next January, he came back, ready to refuse all over again. Something was different. In his first lesson of the new season, he agreed to put one ski on. To the instructors' surprise, he knew how to do it and very well. After all, he had watched and waited for all that time. After one ski, came two skis. After several more weeks, David began to transform. Flashes of exhilaration dashed across his face as he slid cautiously across the flat terrain. Now and again he'd falter as the frustration overcame him, but inevitably he'd get back up and try again.

The inherent benefits that are gained through recreation are increased self-esteem, an expansion of the individual's support network, improved quality of life, heightened personal responsibility and an increase in overall wellness.

During the 2011 ski season, David pointed at the chairlift and said "Lets go up there. To the top." The instructor was shocked, but after all - he had watched and waited for all that time. Without hesitation directing the instructor where he wanted to go, hooting and hollering the whole way. When he sat down on the lift, he never looked back. As they reached the top, all he said was "I did it," and slowly nodded his head.

As he skied down the beginner area, bystanders were astonished as he swiveled parallel turns with his instructor, triumphantly finishing in a hockey stop. No one could believe it. Mouths gaped in disbelief. But after all, he had watched and waited, for all that time. In that moment, the boy who liked to say "No, I can't", instead said, "Next time, can we do that again?"

During the 2011 Ski Season ORCA provided 280
Adaptive ski Lessons at Eaglecrest Ski Area to 50 different individuals utilizing 39 community volunteers!
